FROM THE DESK OF FR. GLASS:

Nunc coepi — Begin again.

Be on your guard against discouragement; there is nothing more to be feared than this. A holy tenacity in the faithful practice of prayer will always be a source of great blessings for you. For the love of God I beg you to wage continual warfare against negative moods, and never fail to begin again. — Fr. Bruno Lanteri.

Bruno Lanteri founded the Oblates of the Virgin Mary (OMV) in northern Italy in 1816. He is one of my favorite Saints, although he is not officially a Saint, but a Venerable. His life's work was to bring people to Christ, principally by means of the Spiritual Exercises of St. Ignatius Loyola. His religious order, 200 years later, is still going strong.

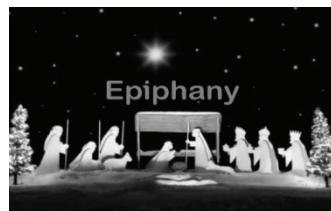

What impresses me most about Fr. Lanteri is the way that he lived out his motto, Nunc coepi — ‘Begin again.’ Throughout his life he was afflicted with illness. He had a passion for preaching but his chronic asthma made this impossible. Most of his efforts, after some considerable success, ended in failure, through no fault of his own. But he always got back on his feet and started over again. This was not optimism, but supernatural confidence in the goodness of God.

Begin again! These are great words to seize on at the start of this New Year. Despite all the disappointments of the past, we can make a fresh start. New Year's resolutions are usually over-ambitious and hardly ever last, but we can always resolve on some simple practical steps to improve our lives. They do not have to be big steps, as long as they are steps in the right direction. St. Augustine says that it is better to crawl along the road than to make great strides off the road, because even if your progress is slow you will eventually arrive at your destination.

For most of us, myself included, the most important thing that we can resolve to do in this new year is to be more generous to God, especially in the time we are willing to offer him in prayer. Fr. Bruno Lanteri was famous as a spiritual director. To those who were having difficulty getting started in prayer, he wrote:

Do not wait until you have devotion to begin to pray. Begin even without devotion since that will come in time, and this is precisely the means to attain it. Devotion must be the fruit and not the cause of prayer. For the rest, you know that true devotion consists in readiness to be faithful to the Lord, and not in sentiment.

As we begin this new year, we should take comfort from this word of Scripture: “The steadfast love of the Lord never ceases; his mercies never come to an end; they are new every morning.” Whatever troubles or disappointments we have experienced in the past, each day bring us a fresh opportunity to begin again.
